DETAILED ACTION

Information Disclosure Statement

The listing of references in the specification is not a proper information disclosure statement. 37 CFR 1.98(b) requires a list of all patents, publications, or other information submitted for consideration by the Office, and MPEP § 609.04(a) states, "the list may not be incorporated into the specification but must be submitted in a separate paper." Therefore, unless the references have been cited by the examiner on form PTO-892, they have not been considered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gibson et al. (US 5,548,217).

With regards to claim 1, Gibson et al. discloses a method of determining a concentration of a gas comprising the steps of: introducing a mixture of gases into a chamber; exposing the gas to microwave (submillimeter) radiation that sweeps a predetermined frequency band (Col. 7, 10-14); and generating a spectrum of the gas (Col. 1, 12-18). Gibson et al. fails to teach providing a standard spectrum, selecting a first peak of the standard spectrum, and determining whether the selected first peak is present in the generated spectrum. Ishihara et al. teaches a spectroscopic analysis method for gases comprising: providing a standard spectrum of the impurity (chemical species) alone (Col. 7, 14-20); selecting a first peak of the standard spectrum of the impurity (chemical species); and determining whether the selected first peak is present in the generated spectrum of the mixture of gases (Col. 11, 24-32). It would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Gibson et al. with the method suggested by Ishihara et al. in order to accurately identify a particular impurity or chemical species in a gas.

With regards to claim 2, Ishihara et al. teach selecting a plurality of peaks from the standard spectrum and determining whether said plurality of peaks are present in the generated spectrum (Col. 11, 24-32).

With regards to claim 3, Ishihara et al. teach selecting the strongest (largest) peak for comparison (Col. 3, 31-41).

With regards to claim 4, Ishihara et al. teach determining a quantity of the chemical species in the mixture of gasses when the first peak is present in the spectrum of the mixture of gasses (Col. 3, 1-7).

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 5 and 6 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

Art Unit: 2884

With regards to claims 5 and 6, prior art teaches most aspects of the claimed invention, namely a method of identifying a component of a gas in a gas mixture using microwave spectroscopy but fails to suggest providing additional standard submillimeter spectra of other chemical species and determining the presence of the first peaks of the corresponding standard submillimeter spectra until at least one/all of the first peaks is determined to be present in the corresponding spectrum.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
